ABSTRACT:

India is the second most populous country in the world. The population explosion has given rise to unprecedented social, cultural and other economic problems in the country. Such youth are mostly in remote, rural and semi-urban areas and their number is increasing by the day

The pendulum has swung back a bit from a romanticized notion of programmes for “all” youth, to a renewed recognition of the challenging contexts that confront many youth of different races, cultures, ethnicities and sexual orientations. Special attention should be given to build and consolidate the capacity of Scheduled Caste community and other excluded organisations in order to continue with the empowerment process. In mean time, these organizations will need a clear guidance in terms of Organisational vision and Strategy building, Organisational management training and Skill development, Leadership development, Alliance building and Strengthening, Representation and influence at local government level, resource generation and access.
