ABSTRACT

The WHO report of ambient air pollution, 2014, ranks Delhi as the most polluted city in the world. There is now an increasing global concern over the public health impacts attributed to environmental pollution. Many epidemiological studies have confirmed a link between air pollution and disease such as asthma, cardiovascular diseases, immature births, Parkinson's diseases, Alzheimer's disease, lung cancer and even depression. There is also an economic cost of high levels of air pollution in Delhi in terms of medical expenses lost wages

Introduction

Economic growth in Delhi has been above national average over the years, so has been the population growth, largely due to migration. According to 2011 census of India, population of Delhi was around 16,753,235 and is expected to rise 40 per cent by the year 2020.

A Good Introduction :-

Depict the significance (importance) of the study - why was this value doing in any case? Give a wide connection. Extremely briefly depict the exploratory configuration and how it achieved the expressed destinations.

Materials

Must add methods and materials in your article.

A Good Materials :-

Methods & Materials used to per research topic.

Result

Must add result in your article.

A Good Result :-

Results are as per aims and objective and useful to further research.

Conclusion

Faced with a similar situation India's neighbour China has already undertaken urgent steps to deal with the pollution crisis. Delhi with its huge population being continuously exposed to greater levels of pollution, needs to wake up and take immediate steps to make the Delhi air healthier.

A Good Conclusion :-

Choose if the trial outline satisfactorily tended to the speculation, and whether it was legitimately controlled. Attempt to offer option clarifications if sensible options exist.

REVIEWER COMMENTS

- The work, as with all work advancing from this specific gathering, is generally sound.
- My remarks here are concerned singularly with the association of the composition.
- Thought of these focuses will, I accept, lead to an enhanced report that better shows the key ideas and conclusions.
- Generally, this is a reasonable, brief, and elegantly composed original
