ABSTRACT

It is generally said – we can change history, not geography. Nevertheless there are many instances when geography has been changed –some times by political decisions, sometimes by wars, at other times by some great engineering feat. Since the last 100 years human activities responsible to border disputes, and the ecological collapse it invited have changed geography. In this situation in which the teeming millions languish under the crushing burden of poverty, only about twenty per cent of the populations enjoy the benefits of development.

REVIEW OF THE ARTICLE

Regionalism Of Border Disputes An Overview

Mahalinga K and Chikkanna

Abstract and Introduction:

The abstract was complete and essential details were presented. Introduction was justifying. Importance of the area under study mentioned clearly in Introduction. In this situation in which the teeming millions languish under the crushing burden of poverty, only about twenty per cent of the populations enjoy the benefits of development.

Methodology:

Author described methodology in detail. This was a conceptual paper. Author described variable under study in sufficient detail.

Reference to the Literature and Documentation:

Ideas were acknowledged appropriately (scholarly attribution) and accurately. The literature was analyzed and critically appraised.

Presentation of Results:

The amount of data presented was sufficient and appropriate. The resurgence of regionalism in various parts of the country has emerged as such a serious problem that it literally threatens to divide the country. The creation of new states like Jharkhand, Uttaranchal (Uttarakhand) and Chhattisgarh in recent times is in fact the expression of territorial regionalism.

Scientific Conduct:

There Were no instances of plagiarism. Ideas and materials of others were correctly attributed.

Relevance:

The study was relevant to the mission of the journal or its audience. The study was worth doing.

References:

Author mentioned references according to the need of the study.

State objectives separately and in detail. Mention objectives according to the variables.
