ABSTRACT:

The TITLE matches with the contents of the paper Kamala Markandaya (1924-2004) pseudonymused by KamalaPurnaiya Taylor an Indian novelist and journalist born in Bangalore, India. Markandayawas educated at the University of Madras in Chennai, India and worked briefly for a weekly newspaper before emigrating England in 1948. There she met her husband with whom she lived in London. Among the women novelists Kamala Marakandaya's works do fit the general thematic complex.

INTRODUCTION:

The introduction provides a good, generalized background of the topic that quickly gives the reader an appreciation Indian English Literature began in the late Eighteenth century. "The Indian English Literature establishes one of the many streams that joins the great ocean called Indian literature, which though written indifferent languages has an unmistakable unity"(Naik 5). At present women writers are dominating in the Indian English Literature. They find solution to the problem of life because they draw their own experience in their culture both traditional and modern. Kamala Markandaya acquired the knowledge of picturing the different women characters in different walks of their life.
