REVIEW OF THE ARTICLE

Formation Of Tricky Troubles That Obstructs To Implement The E-governance From The End Users Opinion

ABSTRACT:

The TITLE matches with the contents of the paper E-Governance applications are available in various government departments among world. It has benefits such as speed, efficiency and convenience etc. But there are many challenges available while implementing E-Government services. These are categorized as front-end and back-end challenges. Front-end challenges are lack of awareness, high illiteracy level, inadequate power supply in rural areas, unavailability of user-friendly interfaces and etc.

INTRODUCTION:

The introduction provides a good, generalized background of the topic that quickly gives the reader an appreciation The emergence of e-Government was as a result of shift from technology to management and the development of scope performance and policy intentions. This was due to the government seeing internet as more than a 'bolt-on' to corporate processes. The concept of e-Government appears to be fairly new in most developing countries. However it is a bipolar phenomenon, which combines the key characteristics of technological department

METHODOLOGY:

PRESENTATION OF RESULTS:

Now it is also the duty of state to frame policies so that men and women have right to adequate means of livelihood From figure 1.2, the results show that people (90%) satisfied the response for calls to the toll-free helpline. Most of the people (70%) are not satisfied in shelter facilities and protection of child from abuse. Some people (48%) are not satisfied in medical facilities for child in distress and guidance from government side. These are affecting the implementation of this toll-free helpline and its further development. To improve e-governance we must provide better medical facilities and training for children who are in distress.
