REVIEW OF THE ARTICLE

A Room Of One's Own: Identity And Feminisms In Barbie Movies

Dr. Divya Pande

ABSTRACT:

The problem statement was clear and well articulated Globalization made Barbie an iconic figure and a role model for little girls all across the globe and the post- colonial India was also influenced by the wave. Barbie animated series became a house- hold watch for children as it was readily and easily available in DVD's. To Freud's 'Anatomy is destiny' Simone de Beauvoir says 'women are not born, women are made'. Rightly so in the social set up gender is differentiated by allocating specific roles to the males and females and structuring of women as gendered subjects.

INTRODUCTION:

The introduction provides a good, generalized background of the topic that quickly gives the reader an appreciation After an extensive research on inherent sexism in fairy tales we all grew up with, I had consciously decided to keep my little daughter away from them. To Freud's 'Anatomy is destiny' Simone de Beauvoir says 'women are not born, women are made'. Rightly so in the social set up gender is differentiated by allocating specific roles to the males and females. While nurturing, care and passivity is associated with feminine; assertiveness, activeness and rationality are the male attributes.

METHODOLOGY:

Author has not mentioned any specific methodology. This study was descriptive in nature. Must add methodology in your article. Methodology used to per research topic.

PRESENTATION OF RESULTS:

Must add result in your article.

A Good Result: -

Results are as per aims and objective and useful to further research.

REFERENCES:

Prior publication by the author(s) of substantial portions of the data or study was appropriately acknowledged.

RELEVANCE:

The paper is properly organized and demands appreciation. I think the paper will satisfy the interest of the readers.
